

Witnesses to History

A Century of Waltham Forest Stories

How many people remember that the Second Nature wholefood shop in Wood Street used to be Jones the Butcher's?

Waltham Forest Oral History Workshop has built up an archive of more than 600 recordings of people who have lived and worked in Waltham Forest telling their own stories of the borough's history and how life here has changed over a hundred years. For Words Over Waltham Forest we have brought together some lively, moving and humorous moments from these interviews. You can hear the past come back to life, share your own memories, and make a recording to add to our collection. You can also drop in at the Waltham Forest Archives and Local Studies Library and the Photo Collection for an introduction to the service.

Saturday 16th November
Community Room, Vestry House Museum
Presentations 3pm, 3.30pm, 4pm

Please note the Museum and Community Room are wheelchair accessible, but the Archive is only accessible by stairs.
